MEDIA TURNOUT-South Pasadena's officials called a press conference on March 18 to release a letter from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency which called for a supplemental Environmental Impact Statement and an independent study of the Low-Build alternative to the 710 Freeway. SoPas Mayor Paul Zee provides information to television and radio reporters about the city's stand on the freeway, while SoPas Chamber of Commerce President Eileen Garcia and Louise Woo from Alhambrans for Traffic Solutions look on.

The National Arbor Day Foundation, a non-profit education organization dedicated to tree planting and environmental stewardship, officially recognized South Pasadena as a Tree City U.S.A. during last week's city council meeting.

Kevin Johnson, deputy forester from the Department of Forestry, represented the National Arbor Day Foundation and presented outgoing Mayor Paul Zee and Norma LaValley, a South Pasadena Beautiful board member, with a plaque and a Tree City U.S.A. flag that will fly over city hall.

Community signs proclaiming South Pasadena as Tree City U.S.A. will also be constructed as part of the special declara-

Communities entering the nationwide program receive the Tree City U.S.A. designation upon recommendation by state foresters, who co-sponsor the program. Communities qualify by establishing a city tree ordinance, providing a legal tree governing body, putting a comprehensive urban forestry program in place and observing Arbor Day each year.

"Tree City U.S.A. is a distinct honor for our community that serves to reinforce the value we place on our natural resources," said Zee. "It's the first time the city has received this national recognition."

Certificates of appreciation were presented to many voluni teers during the council meeting for their assistance in coordinating the march and rally on March 7 opposing the 710 Long Beach Freeway extension.

Individuals recognized included: Sam Burgess, Tom Bryce, David Czamanske, Debbie Fox, John Galetzka, Eileen Garcia, Larry Goren, Alice Harris, Gus Hyland, Clarice Knapp, Joanne Nuckols, Mary Ann Parada, Amedee Richards, Kris Sharp and Beatrice Siev.

Wallace Emory, who grew up in South Pasadena, was selected as the the city's mayor during last week's city council meeting.

However, Emory, who will serve a one year term, did not win unanimous approval from his fellow council members. Councilwoman Dorothy Cohen opposed the appointment while Councilman Harry Knapp abstained.

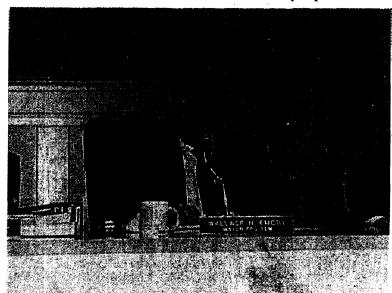

"I would like to do the very best job I possibly can for everybody who lives in South Pasadena, workshere and playshere," said Emory after taking the gavel from former Mayor Paul deal to me."

The 58-year-old Emory attended local schools, played football at South Pasadena High and served in the Boy Scouts of America.

"This city means a lot to me and I want to keep it the way I remember it," added the new mayor.

Part of keeping the city the way he remembers will put Emory at the forefront in the battle against the Long Beach 710 Freeway extension which threatens to cut a path right through the middle of South Pasadena.

ordinance in the coming weeks which would prevent early morning construction on Sundays. Currently, construction is permissible every day from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m.

If adopted, the ordinance would prohibit contractors from beginning work at residences before 10 a.m. on Sundays. It would not apply to residents who wish to undertake home improvements projects before 10

City Manager Sean Joyce said that if the ordinance passes. "Any construction that would require a building permit may not commence until 10 a.m. on Sundays. Six days out of the week that work could begin as early as 7 a.m."

The council approved a resolution adopting the Urban Water Management Plan. The purpose of the plan is to achieve conservation and efficient use of urban water supplies and to ensure that sufficient water supplies will be available for future use.

In other news, the city council welcomed Gay Forbes, the city's new community development director. She and city staff are looking at best possible dates for making a presentation on the General Plan and the final Environmental Impact Report to the city council. A public hearing could be scheduled as early as April 15 or 22.

EPA Faults Caltrans Emissions Data

710 Freeway Opponents Are Buoyed by New Developments

After years of feeling they were fighting a lonely battle, the area's "No on 710" freeway opponents are finding support in high places.

Citing a scathing critique of the 710 Freeway extension by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and a blistering review of the project in a Wall Street Journal story published on March 18, the city of South Pasadena and other freeway opponents called on the Federal Highway Administration to reject the 710 Freeway extension.

The EPA assessment, outlined in a March 4, letter to the FHWA, stated that the costly project would not substantially reduce local congestion - the primary reason for building the project. It also determined that a supplemental Environmental Impact Statement is needed on the proposed freeway.

In addition, the EPA document sharply criticized Caltrans for failing to seriously consider alternative transportation solutions. Freeway opponents distributed the EPA letter at a press conference held on March 18 in El Sereno, one of three communities in the path of the proposed freeway.

Some of the EPA's findings were summarized in the Wall Street Journal story, which also contained a review by Dr. Matthew Barth, head of the UC Center Riverside Environmental Research and Technology which found that Caltrans used data in its EIS on the 710 Freeway that "grossly underestimate emissions."

The Journal quoted Dr. Barth as saying the data provided by Caltrans officials contain the flawed assumption that traffic will move at the 710's designated speed limit of 55 miles an hour, while real freeway speeds approach 70 mph. "...a car traveling that fast would generate about 50% more hydrocarbons and roughly double the amount of carbonmonoxide and oxides-of-nitrogen (NOx) emissions than it would at 55." Caltrans has received preliminary approval from the FHWA for project funding, and a final decision had been expected soon. Outgoing South Pasadena mayor Paul Zee said that his city and opponents from neighboring communities would continue their fight even if FHWA approves the project.

"Caltrans has not been forthright about the project," Zee said. "It has greatly exaggerated the freeway's benefits, ignored its negative impacts and refused to seriously consider any transportation alternatives.

In a five-page letter to FHWA Administrator Julie Anna Cirillo, EPA Regional Administrator Felicia Marcus said, " . . . The scope and significance of the issues surrounding this proposal are compelling that a Supplemental Draft Environmental Impact Statement should be required. . . . We are specifically troubled with the inadequacy of the Multi-Modal Low-Build alternative analysis and the significance of the impacts to historic properties."

Marcus's letter also said, ". . It is evident from the information available that the build alternative (the freeway)

Letter from the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation to President Bill Clinton, Dated March 20, 1998

Dear Mr. President:

As your Advisory Council on Historic Preservation, the Congress has charged us under Section 202 of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, with the responsibility to advise you on matters relating to historic preservation.

We are taking the unusual step of writing to advise you about one of the most important historic preservation cases ever to come before the Council in its 32-year history. The issue is a major highway project funded by the Department of Transportation, known as the Route 710 Freeway in Southern California. This freeway will cut a 4.2 mile swath through historic neighborhoods and stable communities in the Los Angeles area, destroying close to 1,000 homes. Six historic districts and numerous individual historic properties will be adversely affected by this freeway construction.

The Council has formally opposed the Route 710 Freeway project for the past fifteen years. In fact, never before has any single project generated such a consistent response from the members of the Council, through three different presidential administrations. Our twenty member Council includes the heads of six Federal agencies, as well as eleven individual members appointed by you, a governor, a mayor and several ex officio members: Since 1983, this unique cross-section of experts and agency officials has been unwavering in its opposition to the Route 710 Freeway project. This opposition has been formally expressed by the Council to the Secretary of Transportation in 1983, 1984, 1989, and in 1993 through a referral of the project to the Council on Environmental Quality. Now, five years later, we have once again reiterated our concerns in a renewed set of comments.

We request that you review the attached comments, detailing our objections to the proposed freeway, which we have sent to the Secretary of Transportation. We are providing this to you as a special report under Section 202(b) of the National Historic Preservation Act and urge you to consider this issue carefully.

Based on our serious concerns about this project and its impacts on historic properties, we ask you to consider issuing two directives to the Secretary of Transportation. First, before this freeway is approved, a Supplemental Environmental Impact Statement must be prepared to afford the public an opportunity to review and comment upon the current proposed alternative. Both the Department of the Interior and the Environmental Protection Agency are on record regarding the need for such a document to be produced to meet the requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act. Second, an independent and objective analysis of a "low-build" alternative, referred to in our comments, must be conducted. If a "low-build" alterative were implemented, it would save the threatened historic resources and millions of Federal tax dollars.

We hope you will conclude, as we have, that this freeway project should not go forward. We stand ready to assist in any way we can to reach a constructive and sound solution to this critical issue.

Respectfully submitted. Cathryn Buford Slater, Chairman

'Operation Mailbag'

Pasadena's freeway fighting group Eminent Reclaim has initiated "Operation Mailbag." On March 13, the Federal Advisory Council on Historic Preservation voted to send a letter to President Clinton recommending "No 710 Freeway." Eminent Reclaim says the ACHP "called the project the worst proposal in the country," and now it's time for freeway opponents to also write to the president.

For maximum inpact, Eminent Reclaim will send all letters at the same time so the sign it, stamp the envelope, and over city hall address it to: President Bill Clinton, The White House, 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, to Northern California Washington, D.C. 20500.

South Pasadena's residents can drop their letters at the ters Margaret Robison (Tujunga, "Operation Mailbag" depository California), Lynn Bedell (Fall at Buster's Ice Cream Stop, 1006 River Mills, California), and Mission Street, by March 27. If Kristine Durfee (San Rafael, you don't have a stamp handy, California); six grandchildren Eminent Reclaim will stamp it and one great grandson.

customers receive low income or air conditioning cycling rates which provide significant discounts. They should inquire whether an ESP will offer further discounts below these special rates.

4. Understand the terms of any proposal being offered by an ESP. For example, if the ESP proposes a price below the PX price or your applicable froenergy use will be calculated, and whether a discount is guaranteed, and for how long.

5. Negotiate the specific terms of any proposed contract, including upfront costs—such as new metering requirementsand have any guarantees expressed in a binding enforceable contract.

6. Compare other offerings on a total-cost basis with the costs of the total "bundled" servunder its regulated rate structures to determine the best deal.

Finally, get as much information as possible. Call the multilingual "Plug in California" consumer hotline (1 800-253-0500) for further guidance.

And, remember, there is no deadline to make a decision. So evaluate all of your options and weigh them against the value of your current utility services.
